

The meeting took place in person on the 1st of march, in the morning at 9:00 am. The site communicates its points clearly. Yes, according to the feedback, It's nice/good looking and the style is good. No issues about navigation and usability.

Patterns & common themes

- Portfolio/video presentation came up twice (GIFs, video alternatives)
- Content presentation came up twice (about section whitespace, image suggestion)
- Functionality came up once (editing reviews/appointments)

Priority

- High: About section - too much whitespace, needs an image
- Medium: Video/portfolio presentation - could convert to gif or mp4 for better performance
- Low: Edit reviews/appointments - already implemented

The about section image was prioritized highest as it is a quick visual improvement with significant impact on first impressions and directly addresses repeated feedback. Video presentation was assigned medium priority since it doesn't really affect the usability of the site, and the time would be too long right now. If I add new videos I could convert the others as well. Review editing was marked low priority as it is already implemented in the PHP version, and appointment editing is handled externally through Calendly's built-in reschedule functionality.

My client didn't mind the about and didn't want an image to break up the text. Like I said above the conversion of the current videos is not worth it right, but if we add new videos then we can overhaul.
